Students welcome freshers amid cultural festivity

EDITORIAL

Ours is a university dedicated to the assimilation and dissemination of knowledge to bring in the full flowering of the talents that lie latent in the youths at our care i.e. the full physical, mental, intellectual and spiritual development of the students to enable them to shoulder the responsibility that they will be entrusted with by the motherland. Not that we brag of having achieved this end, we are always at pains "to seek, to find" to add to our strength, to our facilities and amenities to cater to the needs of the learners. These unrelenting and unceasing efforts have borne plenty of fruits in that the university has been able to turn out nearly 2500 graduates within the short span of five years only since its very inception in September 2002.

The meagre accommodation facility of 6000 sqft of building area has expanded to a spacious magnificent six storied building of nearly 54,000 sqft containing not only classrooms and teachers' accommodation but also libraries, laboratories, reading, prayer and common rooms for students with indoor games facilities. Seminar and Conference Rooms as well as Language Laboratory are in place. Placed in all these are adequate fittings and fixtures, furniture and air-conditioners, articles and accessories, equipments and books that are necessary to serve their respective purposes effectively. The library is enriched with a collection of 15000 books while the laboratories have been well-equipped to meet the requirements of the students.

Progress has touched the diversification of courses of studies as well; the university now consists of five faculties of Arts and Social Science, Business Administration, Engineering, Information Technology and Law branching into eight disciplines and fifteen programmes.

Debate, Quiz and Cultural Competitions, both intra and inter-university, have caught the imagination of the students and many of them have proved their worth in the arena of extracurricular activities along with the vast majority of their community participating in the observance of occasions like the Independence and National Day, Victory Day, Language Martyrs and International Mother Language Day, Martyred Intellectual Day, Rabindra- Nazrul Anniversaries, University Foundation Day, Pitha Utsab, Fruits Festival etc. Hilarious picnics and delightful excursions have also enlivened themselves in these hosts of activities.

The bi-annual journal of the university has earned appreciation with the regular publication of its issues.

Sports and athletics also figure in their extra-academic routine not to the detriment of the academic ones galvanizing their participation in intra and inter university football and cricket competitions.

Other activities of the teachers and the taught are there but order and space bid me stop here.

PRIME UNIVERSITY PAYS HOMAGE TO MARTYRS, ORGANIZES CULTURAL PROGRAMME

Nation pays homage to martyrs to observe its 38th Independence and National Day on 26th March 2008. Father of the nation, Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman proclaimed its independence on March 26, 1971- a day after the Pakistani occupation forces with the help of their local collaborators had cracked down on innocent Bengalis and the country was liberated on December 16, 1971 after nine months of bloody armed struggle.

Prime University organized Discussion, Documentary Display and Cultural Programme at its premises to celebrate the 38th Independence and National Day on 26th March 2008 recalling the supreme sacrifice made by the valiant sons of the soil for the liberation of the country.

The celebration started at 3:00 p.m. with the discussion by freedom fighter and Pro-Vice Chancellor of the University Mir Shahabuddin. In his speech he passionately narrated the unforgettable experiences of the liberation war and evaluated its significance, loss and achievement. He laid stress on performing the duties of every individual, especially the students to build Bangladesh as a nation of peace and prosperity. In his address to the audience Professor Dr. M. Abdus. Samad, the Vice Chancellor of the university paid deep homage to the martyrs of the war of independence.

Students and staffs of Prime university participate in cultural programme in observance of 38th Independence and National Day

In the second part of the programme, a documentary titled 'Shei Raater Kotha Bolte Asechhi' by Kaisar Ahmed based on the killings of the Pakistani Army in Dhaka University area at midnight on 25th March 1971 was displayed.

The third and final part of the programme started with a rendition of the National Anthem by the university students. The whole programme was designed with those inspirational songs and recitation, which were mostly performed during the entire process and movement of Independence. All the faculty members, executives, staffs and students of the university participated in the programme spontaneously.

Pro-VC Mir Shahabuddin and Dean of Faculties of Arts, Social Science and Business Studies Prof. Dr. M. A. Jalil encouraging voluntary blood donors

Stressing the need for voluntary blood donation, Mir Shahabuddin, in his brief speech, urged upon the assembly, particularly the students to come forward on a regular basis to help thousands of patients. "Your donated blood directly benefits the patients of our community and as the need for blood consistently exceeds the available supply, so you should donate blood at regular intervals to save some other's life", he said.

Suraiya Rahman, Director, Co-ordination of Quantum Foundation Blood Bank informed the gathering that donating blood is entirely safe as completely sterile, single-use and disposable equipment is used for each donation and then safely discarded. So it is not possible to acquire any disease from donating blood. About the frequency of blood donations she also informed that one might donate once in every 56 days, up to 6 times a year.
